ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I sincerely acknowledge the help, co-operation and support of many individuals and organizations in the whole study process and the completion of this research.

My profound gratitude goes to Dr. Kanok Rerkasem, my academic and thesis advisor, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Benjavan Rerkasem, Dr. Sakda Jongkaewwattana and Assoc. Prof. Chalermpon Sampet, committee members for their valuable advices and constructive criticisms which made this thesis more readable. Special thank goes to Mrs. Lakkana Dunkham, English teacher, and her husband for editing the final draft.

I wish to thank all staff members of the Agricultural Systems Program who provided various forms of assistance. Special thanks are due to Dr. Methi Ekasingh, Dr. Soonthorn Buranawiriyakul, Mrs. Ampan Bhromsiri Dr. Manas Titayavan for their expert supervision; Mr. Sithichai and Mr. Jamlong for their help in the laboratory and field work; Khun Pong and Nuansri for facilitating the official documents.

It is a pleasure to thank all of my Vietnamese friends (Tuyen, Wel, Phu, Hao, Dung and Mrs. Kinh), my classmates and colleagues, especially Suporn, Wawta, Ellen, Cheng and Panya for their helpful assistance and friendly mental support.

I would also like to express my deep appreciation to Prof. Dr. Vo-Tong Xuan for his valuable guidance and encouragement.

My study could not be successfully completed without financial support from Mennonite Central Committee (MCC). My special gratitude is given for that. I also thank Mr. & Mrs. MinhKauffman, Co-Directors of The Center for Educational Exchange Programs for their devoted and warm concerns.

Finally, the encouragement from my parents and my family is also very valuable and essential for my success.

Thanks!
