ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The first, I would like to thank my advisors, Professor Benjavan Rerkasem for her support and valuable guidance during my study who gave me an opportunity and encouragement to continue my work and study.

I am deeply grateful to next my advisor, Associate Professor Dr. Sansanee Jamjod and Assoc. Prof. Dr. Dumnern Karladee for their helping me all supports during the long process of this thesis.

I also thank to Associate Professor Suthat Julsrigival and Assistant Prof. Dr. Pathipan Sutigoolabud for kind suggestions to improve my thesis.

I would like to thank Professor Bernard Dell for his unlimited help and support in every aspect throughout my study. I thank staffs at lab of School of Biological Sciences and Biotechnology, Division of Science and Engineering, Murdoch University, Australia, especially Mr. Gordon Thomson for helping with the tissue analysis and for his unselfishness in plant analysis techniques and information sharing during my rough time.

I am much indebted to the Multiple Cropping Center (MCC), Chiang Mai University for giving me the time to my study.

I wish to grateful appreciation to thank to my colleagues at the Multiple Cropping Center for assistance in their field work and in performing of plant grinding.

I also sincerely thank so much to Miss Utomporn Chaiwong, Scientist of the CMUPNlab, for her assistance in the field work and plant sampling.

I extend my thanks to all staff and students at the CMUPNlab, Faculty of Agriculture, Chiang Mai University and my colleagues at the Multiple Cropping

Center, Chiang Mai University for the joy and fun we shared together that helped reduce the pressure during the difficult time of study.

Finally, I extend my deepest thanks to my mother who taught me the basis of life living and the importance of education. I gratefully thank my sisters (Hiang), and teachers since at primary school who instilled in me love in education and my family, especially my son (Siralert) and my wife (Kanjanaporn) for understanding and encouragement at all time were invaluable.
